

Central New York
Humanities Corridor

The Stories We Tell Ourselves: The power of writing in community to challenge assumptions about ourselves and others

Wednesday, October 26

9:30 - 10:45 a.m.

Tolley Hall, 304, Online option available

Join Johnny Page, Executive Director of ConTextos Chicago, and learn how this storytelling organization uses the power of literary arts and education to promote healing and reflection.

Page is also an alumnus of the Education Justice Project, a comprehensive college-in-prison program based at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Space is limited for in-person attendance. RSVP at <https://tinyurl.com/yzevnbe7> or use the QR code above. Include any request for accommodations by October 10. Queries can be sent to Patrick W. Berry at pwberry@syr.edu.

This event is made possible by the the Central New York Humanities Corridor from an award by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Co-sponsors include: Writing Studies, Rhetoric, and Composition, the English Department, and the Engaged Humanities Network at Syracuse University.

PROJECT MEND

CENTER FOR COMMUNITY ALTERNATIVES

S Syracuse University
Humanities Center